

Parent Council January 2020

From Mme Sabb and Mr. Perron

Oh my God... We are so excited to share this information with you.

Our 60 students in both classes Sabba's MF5/6A and Perron's MF4/5A are Non-literally on fire with the Passion Projects they worked on over the holidays.

Parents were super excited when they learned about the possibilities presented by this open ended passion project in December and that they would have a chance to work with other families together, to create amazing projects in order to share them in January in class during the first week back.

Students have baked, cooked, knitted, written 20 page novels, created movies, filmed themselves playing the piano, making a craft, created paper cranes, and many other origami projects, the list goes on and on. Some got together with other families to create these and others did projects on their own. These projects have been so popular, so engaging and educational for both students and their families that upon popular request, we're going to ask students to create another passion project in June to be shared in class during the last week of school in 2020.

Students main task was to explain what they're passionate about and why they would like to share that in class with the rest of us. They were asked to create Google slideshows, adding video clips or images of themselves working on their projects, describing the step by step procedures used in creating their final product. A detailed Student-Driven rubric was Co-created in class and went along with each passion project, also posted on our classroom blog.
